Yes, Virginia,

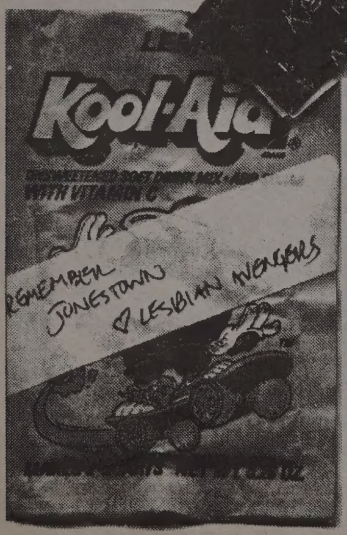
Condom mania

Members of a new gay activist group in town shocked unsuspecting churchgoers when they threw condoms attached to Kool-Aid packets into the audience during a Village Seven Presbyterian Church in November.

The disturbance occurred between a hymn and a scripture reading, when the group, calling themselves Savaged Homos Into Truth, stood up, blew a loud whistle and yelled "Gays and lesbians under attack – what do we do?"

"Fight back, act up," they continued. One then yelled, "This one's for you, Will Perkins," and the group threw the condoms/Kool-Aid™ combos into the audience and left the church. Perkins, the founder of Colorado for Family Values, is a member of the church.

Commented one elderly member of the congregation after the service: "They (the gay activists) were even wearing suits and ties."



Condoms and Koolaid™ flew at a Village Seven church service, setting off a flood of controversy over whether this was in fact the best use of a Non-Lubricated Kiss of Mint™.
